

The Lauraville Pet Gazette

FOR CATS, DOGS, AND OTHER CREATURES · LAURAVILLE, BALTIMORE · EST. 2026

FROM THE MAILBAG

Local Fox Maintains Puzzling Daytime Schedule. Community Has Questions.

FOX · DAYTIME SIGHTINGS · LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Foxy, Are you suffering from insomnia? I have seen you between 8 and 10 a.m. and in the afternoons several times over the past couple months. Why? Do you require a stash of melatonin or magnesium? Are your roommates too loud? How can we help? Regards, A Concerned Neighbor.

The fox has not responded. The Gazette notes that red foxes are crepuscular by nature. A nearby den is possible. An unconventional personal schedule is also possible. The Gazette declines, at present, to speculate on which. The matter remains ongoing.

DISPUTED AVIAN

A Bird Is Crowing Near Echodale and Gibbons. Its Species Remains in Dispute.

A resident has called upon the neighborhood to address a crowing bird near Echodale and Gibbons. The species remains unconfirmed. One neighbor believes it to be a rooster. Another has suggested a cockatiel. These are, the Gazette wishes to note, very different animals. The neighborhood appears divided on whether the sound constitutes a nuisance. The Gazette takes no formal position on the matter. The bird has not been located. The bird has not been quiet.

CORRECTIONS & UPDATES

Correction: This Publication Misspelled Catalpha Road. The Cat Has Recovered.

Last edition, this publication referred to Catalpha Road as "Catalpa Road." This was an error. The Gazette regrets it. The orange tom previously reported limping on Catalpha has since been sighted between Ailsa and Strathmore. He appears to have made a recovery. He has not commented on the limp or the misspelling.

COMMUNITY NOTICES

Lady Luminara Announces Availability for Correspondence.

GREAT DANE · OPEN FOR TIDINGS

Lady Luminara, a Great Dane of Lauraville, has indicated through her household that she wishes to contribute tidings to this publication. She has not, as of this writing, done so. The Gazette waits with interest.

Stanley and Gene Are Also Looking for Stories

TWO ORANGE CATS · WINDOW-BASED

Stanley and Gene, two orange cats, have been observed monitoring the neighborhood from a window. This is, the Gazette notes, a perfectly reasonable method of gathering intelligence. Submissions may be directed to lauravillepetgazette.com.

SUSPICIOUS ACTIVITY

Feral Colony Established on Pinewood Ave. One Member Has Taken Interest in Dog Walkers.

A feral cat colony has been established on Pinewood Avenue. It is described by sources as a family. At least one member of the colony has begun following dog walkers along their regular routes. No invitation was extended.

FOR NEXT ISSUE

Have a Tip?

Scan the code or visit lauravillepetgazette.com. Sources may remain anonymous.

